LOCAL INFORMATION

Shanghai, or translated "City on the Sea", is situated on the banks of the Yangtze River Delta in East China, is the largest city of the People's Republic of China and the eighth largest in the world. Shanghai, an open city on the coast and a famous historical and cultural city, is a gate to the Yangtze River delta. It is a municipality under the direct jurisdiction of the Central Government, the largest economic and trade center, a comprehensive industrial base and the leading port in China.

Shanghai is well known in the world not only for its prosperous cosmopolitan feature but also for its rich humanistic resources. In recent years, a number of modern buildings have been added to the city, such as the Oriental Pearl TV Tower, Shanghai Museum, Shanghai Library, Shanghai Stadium, Shanghai Grand Theatre, Shanghai Circus City, Shanghai City-Planning Exhibition Hall and Jin Mao Tower, Shanghai Science & Technology Museum. They have become new scenic sights in Shanghai. Colorful festivities, like Shanghai Tourism Festival and Shanghai China International Art Festival, have attracted an increasing number of tourists from home and overseas.

Location and Climate
Shanghai is situated at 31°14' north latitude and 121°29' east longitude, and in the middle of China's east coastline. Shanghai has a pleasant climate, with four distinct seasons: warm spring, hot summer, cool autumn and cold winter. In November, the average high temperature is 16.8°C and average low 8.6°C.

Shanghai Flights & Airport
Shanghai has two commercial airports: Hongqiao International and Pudong International, the latter of which has the third highest traffic in China, following Beijing Capital International Airport and Hong Kong International Airport. Pudong International handles more international traffic than Beijing Capital however, with over 17.15 million international passengers handled in 2006 compared to the latter's 12.6 million passengers. Hongqiao mainly serves domestic routes, with a few city-to-city flights to Tokyo's Haneda Airport and Seoul's city airport.

CONFERENCE TRAVEL INFORMATION

Travel from/to airport
Taxis are available from the two international airports to the conference hotel. The taxi fair from the Pudong Airport to the conference venue is about RMB170-200, and from the Hongqiao Airport is about RMB70-100, depending on the traffic. Nighttime (11:00pm-5am) taxi fares are about 20-30% higher.
Either airport is sitting on a metro line, Lines 2 and 10 for Hongqiao airport, and Line 2 for Pudong airport.

Travel around the city
Two easy ways to travel around in the city (three if you count walking): taxi and metro.
Taxis are abundant (and inexpensive) in the city and can be hailed from the street or ordered through a phone call (or as young people often do, via a mobile app). It is safe and cheating by the driver is very rare, but always ask for a receipt after the ride as the receipt has the information about the ride and the contact information of the taxi driver/cab. Not all taxi drivers speak English though. So it's suggested to have the destinations in Chinese written on a sheet of paper to show to the driver.
Shanghai metro is foreigner friendly, with stops announced loud and clear in both Chinese and English. Metro cars are clean and safe. Metro ticket purchasing is straightforward since most (if not all) stations have manned ticket booth and automated ticket machines.

Travel to/from banquet site
The conference banquet (and business meeting) is going to be held at the Shanghai Grand Theatre. The conference provides buses from/to the conference venue (buses leave the conference venue at 6pm). In case you want to travel to the site by yourself, taxi fare is about RMB30-40, and you may take metro Lines 1, 2, and 8, and take off at People's Squire. The Grand Theatre is about 200-300 meters away.

About high-speed train
High-speed train is an ideal way to travel to/from neighboring cities (in this case, a neighboring city may be as far as 500 kilometers away). For example, Suzhou is 100 kilometers (or 30 minutes) away, Hangzhou is 200 kilometers (or 45 minutes) away, and Nanjing is only 300 kilometers (or 1 hour) away. Even Beijing is only 1200 kilometers (or 5 hours) away.
Most high-speed trains stop at the Hongqiao Train Station, which is adjacent to the Hongqiao Airport. Metr Lines 2 and 10 stop at the Hongqiao Train Station.
